Contraception Methods

Modern contraception includes pills, injectables, implants, condoms and intrauterine devices. Each method differs in effectiveness, duration and side effects. A trained health provider can help you choose a method that fits your life.

Condoms also protect against sexually transmitted infections, including HIV. Use a new condom for every act of sex.

Where to get care

Visit your nearest health centre for confidential family planning services. Youth friendly services are available in many districts. You can ask questions without fear of judgement.

If you experience severe pain, heavy bleeding or fever after starting any method, seek care immediately.
